Reopening Your Small Business After the Coronavirus Shutdown

Cities around the nation are beginning to lift their COVID-19-related restrictions. For businesses that closed their brick-and-mortar locations, the following steps will help you plan for reopening while protecting customers and employees.

	EDUCATE YOURSELF
	Stay abreast of current federal, state and local COVID-19 guidelines for businesses, as well as industry-specific guidelines. Sign up for updates from the Centers for Disease Control , the SBA, state and local health departments, and relevant industry associations.
	If you have multiple locations, be aware of COVID-19 related laws in each locale.
	Designate a COVID-19 team of one or more employees to oversee your COVID-19 response and reopening plan.
	ASSESS YOUR FINANCES
	Create a cash flow forecast including optimistic, pessimistic and realistic models.
	Look for ways to cut expenses and add new revenue streams.
	Estimate increased costs for retrofitting space, deep cleaning, ongoing sanitation, etc.
	Keep updated on financial assistance available from lenders and government sources.
	Communicate with landlords, creditors, vendors and lenders to negotiate payments.
	Ask your insurance agent about appropriate coverage to protect against lawsuits from customers or employees after reopening
	ADJUST YOUR BUSINESS MODEL
	If your business pivoted during closure (for example, adding tele-appointments, ecommerce, delivery service, curbside pickup, new products or services, working remotely), decide which elements to continue. Consider surveying customers to get their opinions.
	Decide if you will reopen in stages or all at once.
	Determine if you need to adjust business hours to allow for limited numbers of customers or provide extra time for cleaning.
	Ensure you have adequate sources of equipment, inventory and supplies needed to run your business, as well as backup sources if your primary vendors can't fulfill your orders.
	PLAN YOUR STAFFING
	Identify staffing needs for each stage of reopening.
	Understand how COVID-19 related employment laws affect your decisions. A SCORE mentor or local employment attorney can help.
	Update your operations handbook and employee handbook to reflect new policies and procedures consistent with public health guidelines.
	Contact employees to discuss their needs. Create a plan to help at-risk employees, parents or caregivers who may need special accommodations to return to work.
	Create a business continuity plan and a crisis communications plan in case an outbreak of COVID-19 occurs at your business.
	Train employees on new procedures including cleaning, social distancing and health screenings.
П	Cross-train employees so you have backup in place if some workers are absent

KEEP YOUR WORKPLACE CLEAN
Develop procedures for cleaning and disinfecting workspaces , surfaces and shared tools regularly and educate employees on them.
Provide soap, tissue, trash cans, hand sanitizer and EPA-approved disinfecting wipes throughout your workplace.
Put up signage directing employees on workplace sanitation, hand-washing, hygiene, social distancing habits and symptoms of COVID-19.
Depending on local and industry regulations, provide masks and gloves for employees or allow them to bring their own.
Provide more frequent breaks for employees to wash their hands.
Secure sources (including backup sources) for regular supply of cleaners, disinfectants and personal protective equipment (PPE).
IMPLEMENT SOCIAL DISTANCING
Move employee workstations at least 6 feet apart. Install acrylic barriers or use cubicle walls to further limit contact.
Eliminate shared workstations if possible; if not, provide disinfecting wipes, hand sanitizer and disposable gloves at each shared space.
Use videoconferencing or conference call technology to avoid in-person meetings with clients, customers and partners.
Stagger schedules so fewer employees are in the workspace at one time.
Allow remote work when possible; provide necessary equipment for employees to work securely.
Limit employee travel, including travel between multiple locations of your business.
Provide PPE for customers or other visitors or require them to bring their own.
Develop a plan for handling customers, visitors and employees who refuse to follow your health and safety guidelines.
